AT JOHN CARROLL UNIVERSITY

Michael D. Johnson served as the 25th President of John Carroll University from 2018 to 2021. John Carroll is one of 27 Jesuit universities in the United States and comprised of two colleges, the College of Arts & Sciences and the Boler College of Business. President Johnson focused his efforts on the University's academic accreditations, fundraising, strategic planning, adapting to the pandemic, reducing cost structures, and improving facilities. His accomplishments include:

Academic Accreditations and University Ranking: During academic year 2018-2019 John Carroll received highly successful reaccreditations from three major accrediting bodies, the Higher Learning Commission, the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (both in Business and Accounting), and the Council for the Accreditation of Educator Preparation. In 2020, John Carroll University's overall ranking in US News & World Report rose from #6 to #2 among Regional Universities Midwest.

Fundraising: In June of 2018 President Johnson announced a $10 million gift from the Boler family to name the John M. and Mary Jo Boler College of Business and another $5 million in matching gifts from the University's Board of Directors. The College received two subsequent gifts in May 2019 as part of its $25 million Inspired Lives campaign to name the Christine M. and Richard J. Kramer School of Accountancy and Information Sciences and the Susan C. and William P. Donnelly School of Leadership and Social Innovation. Fiscal year 2019 was a record-high year of fundraising for the University with over $36 million in new gifts and commitments. In 2020 President Johnson established the Debra L. Pawl Professorship in Biology through an estate gift from the late Debra Paul '74.

Strategic Plan 2021-2026: From fall of 2019 through fall of 2020 President Johnson led the University community through the development of Igniting the Future: The Strategic Plan for John Carroll University 2021-2026. Focused on new academic programs and an integrated approach to the student experience, the plan was formally approved by the Board of Directors in December 2020. Highlights include:

- A vision that builds upon John Carroll's strengths in the arts and sciences while enhancing its reputation through distinction in health, business, analytics, and experiential learning.
- A strong commitment to building and sustaining a more diverse living, learning, and working environment.
- Growing underleveraged degree programs in biology and business while developing new programs in health, business, STEM concentrations, and integrated analytics.

- Expanding student populations with a focus on graduate and transfer students.
- Reimagining academic structures to be more impactful, effective and efficient.
- Development of an integrated student success model that continues to foster a culture of care.
- Significant investments in enrollment management, marketing, and campus facilities in support of undergraduate and graduate enrollment and retention.

Pandemic Response: By March 2020, in the midst of the strategic planning process, the COVID-19 pandemic created unprecedented uncertainty in John Carroll's finances and fundamentally changed how the University interacts with its students and other stakeholders. Through the efforts of a COVID-19 Task Force focused on campus operations and reopening plans, and a Scenario Planning Task Force focused on academic and financial planning, the University effectively transitioned to an online environment, controlled costs, invested in classroom technology and extensive faculty training, and successfully reopened campus in January 2021 using a HyFlex (hybrid) model of instruction.

Cost Restructuring: Like many colleges and universities, John Carroll has faced a declining and more price-conscious population of college applicants, flat revenues, and an unsustainable cost structure, a problem amplified by the pandemic. President Johnson's plan for John Carroll focused on enrollment growth through implementation of the strategic plan and the reduction of historically high cost structures. In May 2020 he announced a three-year restructuring effort to reduce John Carroll's pre-COVID staff, faculty, and general expense costs by $15 million. The plan included an additional $5 million in temporary savings for fiscal year 2021 directly related to the uncertainties of the pandemic. By January 2021, over $10 million in structural cost savings were implemented and/or identified and over $5 million in temporary savings achieved.

Facilities: In 2018, President Johnson engaged John Carroll's Student Government to identify and implement a set of facilities projects on campus that would directly enhance the student experience. Over summer 2019 and summer 2020, $3 million was invested to create new or renovated campus fitness facilities, music facilities, student organization offices, student meeting and lounge spaces, remote dining options, and an outdoor patio. Other projects launched during his tenure include a two-phase, $30 million planned renovation of the University library and student learning center, a $15 million renovation of iconic Dolan Hall (residence hall), and construction of the $2 million Short Family Tennis Complex.

AT BABSON COLLEGE

Michael D. Johnson served as the Provost of Babson College from 2016 to 2018. As the senior academic officer of the College, he led all academic affairs including oversight of the Undergraduate School, the F.W. Olin Graduate School of Business, and the Babson Executive and Enterprise Education division that includes the Babson Executive Conference Center. He was responsible for the vision and overall coordination for academic and student affairs, including academic operations, accreditation, admissions, student services, career services, centers and institutes, institutional research, athletics, and academic budgeting.

Provost Johnson led the approval of a new intellectual property policy for the College and developed a new governing policy for research centers and institutes. He co-led a college-wide task force, with the Chief Information Officer, to develop a comprehensive strategy for online learning and co-led another task force, with the Chief Business and Financial Officer, to explore growth of the undergraduate student body and plan for associated growth in faculty, staff and facilities. Provost Johnson worked with the Babson College leadership to advance the College's 2019 Centennial Campaign and "hub strategy" to grow its physical footprints both domestically (in Boston, San Francisco and Miami) and abroad. He worked closely with the academic leadership, faculty and students from the Olin College of Engineering and Wellesley College to advance the BOW (Babson-Olin-Wellesley) Consortium. Provost Johnson was the executive sponsor for the Weissman Foundry, an innovation and design space for Babson, Olin and Wellesley students on the Babson campus that opened in September, 2018. He co-led, with President Kerry Healey, a major renovation and expansion of Horn Library. During academic year 2017-2018, Provost Johnson led Babson's successful reaccreditation by the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business.

AT CORNELL UNIVERSITY

Michael D. Johnson served as the sixth Dean of the Nolan School of Hotel Administration at Cornell University from 2006 to 2016. As dean of an independent school, he reported directly to the Cornell University Provost. During his tenure at Cornell Dean Johnson focused his efforts on investing in faculty, expanding students' learning and career opportunities, increasing diversity, building an effective fundraising organization, and growing the school's global platform. His accomplishments include:

Improved Academic Excellence and Diversity: Dean Johnson raised the standards for academic excellence for the School's faculty and students. Approximately two-thirds of the School's tenure-track and lecturer faculty members were hired during his tenure. The diversity of the faculty, student body and staff steadily increased under Dean Johnson's leadership with a particular emphasis on increasing the diversity of the School's faculty. In September of 2014, AACSB (the Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business) granted the School of Hotel Administration inaugural, unit-level accreditation at Cornell. The AACSB report praised the quality of the School's students, faculty, facilities, and leadership.

Improved Learning and Career Opportunities: Through a combination of new programs within SHA and cross-college collaboration, Dean Johnson led the expansion and enrichment of academic programs, learning opportunities and related career opportunities for both undergraduate and graduate students. This included the establishment and development of the Pillsbury Institute for Hospitality Entrepreneurship, the Center for Real Estate and Finance, the Cornell Institute for Hospitality Labor and Employee Relations (with the ILR School), and the Cornell Institute for Healthy Futures (with the College of Human Ecology). Throughout Dean Johnson's tenure, the School's undergraduate students graduated with the highest rated educational experience and highest career placement rates at Cornell University.

External Relationships and Fundraising: Dean Johnson led the School's capital campaign, completed in December of 2015, which raised over $160 million for students, faculty and programs. This fundraising included gifts to fund the Leland C. and Mary M. Pillsbury Institute for Hospitality Entrepreneurship ($15 million), the Bradley H. Stone Deanship ($10 million), the Richard and Lisa Baker Program in Real Estate ($10 million), the Burton M. Sack Professorship in Food and Beverage Management ($3 million), the

John and Melissa Ceriale Professorship in Hospitality Human Resources ($3 million), the Michael D. Johnson Family Professorship in Services Marketing ($3 million), the Marriott Student Learning Center ($3 million) and countless scholarships to support students who would otherwise not be able to attend Cornell. Dean Johnson strengthened the School's ties to both its alumni network and the greater hospitality industry, as evidenced through the growth of formal industry events, partnerships and sponsorships. This included the annual Cornell Hospitality Icon & Innovator Awards gala in New York City.

Growing the School's Global Platform: Dean Johnson grew the School's global platform to extend its global reach and influence, capitalize on its global brand name, and drive the revenues needed to support its continued growth and preeminence in hospitality education. The School launched a dual degree (MBA and MMH) program with the China Europe International Business School (CEIBS) in Shanghai, China and established a collaborative agreement with the Shanghai Municipal Education Commission to establish a China Faculty Development Program to develop faculty for Cornell-affiliated programs in China. Dean Johnson also worked with developers in Shanghai, China to create the Cornell SHA Shanghai Center as a research and teaching center.

Service to the University and Hospitality Industry: Dean Johnson worked with Cornell's provost, deans, vice provosts, college officers and faculty on the University's strategic plan to "Reimagine Cornell." The plan detailed where Cornell should focus its resources for excellence and how to reduce its expenditures. This included creation of the Business at Cornell Consortium aimed to leverage the collective impact of management education at Cornell. Across campus, Dean Johnson chaired the Business at Cornell Consortium, which launched a university-wide minor in business, and chaired the board of governors of Entrepreneurship at Cornell. He served as a member of the Board of Directors of eCornell, Cornell University's wholly-owned online learning company, and the Administrative Board of the Cornell University Council.

Dean Johnson was appointed to the Governor's New York State Tourism Advisory Council in 2011, on which he served until 2016. He was a member of the Hospitality Infrastructure Committee for the Council. During this time the Council was responsible for expanding the "I Love New York" campaign from a New York City focus to a state-wide campaign that drove significant increases in tourism revenues across the State of New York. Johnson's service to the hospitality industry included membership on the International Council on Hotel, Restaurant, and Institutional Education (ICHRIE) and the Urban Land Institute's Hotel Development Council.
